The Fugitive Blacksmith

By CHARLES D. STEWART

A GENUINE surprise. A well-known critic says: "Not since Mark Twain's Mississippi book have I come across any story of this region as vital and at first hand as 'The Fugitive Blacksmith.' . . . I tell you this book is decidedly out of the ordinary in plot, scene, character and vigorous hold of the life that now is. It is sure to pique curiosity and make hosts of friends."

Finerty, a quaint and comfortable philosopher, runs the sand-house in a railway yard. To him comes Stumpy and tells the story of his side-partner Bill, the Fugitive Blacksmith; and sometimes Finerty tells a story—and between them all the reader gets a lot of fun.

Frontispiece by Hambidge. 12mo, 320 pages, $1.50.

THE SMOKE-EATERS

By HARVEY J. O'HIGGINS

THIS is one of the most exciting books of its kind ever written—and one full of humor. It graphically records the life and deeds of the men who, as they say, "eat smoke and spit black buttons." It comes pretty near being the epic of the city firemen, its wonderfully strong situations being developed through the mixed motives of love, jealousy, hate, cowardice, and heroism. The scene of each big episode is a fire. A book for men, and a good one.

Illustrated, 12mo, 300 pages, $1.50.

IN THE NAME OF LIBERTY

A Story of the Terror

By OWEN JOHNSON

Author of "Arrows of the Almighty." A powerful love-story, giving a new point of view of one of the most picturesque and wildest tragedies in all history—the French Revolution.

HAMILTON W. MABIE says:

"I do not recall having read any story which brings before the imagination more vividly every-day life in Paris during the Revolutionary period."

Frontispiece by Castaigne in tints. 12mo, 406 pages, $1.50.

ANDRÉ CASTAIGNE'S

Fascinating Novel

FATA MORGANA

A book of romance and adventure—a charming picture of the gay, free life of the studios, the circus, the boulevards and student restaurants of Paris, by a man who knows his subject well.

"Few could put into a novel the color which riots through this book."—Express, Buffalo.

"An extremely interesting and original book."—Sun, New York.

REVELL'S LATEST BOOKS

The Story of the Expedition conducted by Leonidas Hubbard, Jr.

The Lure of the Labrador Wild

Illustrations and Maps, 8vo, Cloth, net $1.50.

DILLON WALLACE

Mr. Hubbard's survivor here presents in a graphic literary style the complete record of the tragic story of these Companion-Explorers into undiscovered Labrador. Kipling's call to find the "something hidden behind the ranges" was their watchword, and Mr. Wallace has given the world a record of high, noble purpose and achievement. The heart of every man who has heard the "red gods' call" will beat faster and yet faster as they follow "the feet of the young men" from page to page as they "go-go-go away" into the trackless wilderness. A wealth of photographic illustrations and original maps combine to give authenticity and vividness to this unique narrative of adventure.

The Harvest of the Sea

A tale of both sides of the Atlantic.

Illustrated, 12mo, Cloth, net $1.00.

WILFRED T. GRENFELL, M.D.

A vivid story in which fact is presented in fiction form of the Deep Sea Fisherman's life on the Dogger banks in the North Sea and off the Coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador. Full of thrilling heroic adventure in which men count not their lives dear—"This also is the price of fish."

Doctor Luke

12mo, Cloth, $1.50.

Third Edition

By NORMAN DUNCAN

"Beyond a peradventure ranks as one of the most remarkable novels issued in 1904. Stands out so prominently in the year's fiction that there is little likelihood of its being overshadowed by any of its competers. The verdict may be left to the reader without any fear."

—Current Literature.

"Mr. Duncan has added a new province to the realm of literature. This strong, beautiful love story moves with a distinctive rhythm that is as fresh as it is new. Doctor Luke is one of the season's two or three best books."—American Monthly Review of Reviews.

Dr. Grenfell's Parish:

The Deep Sea Fishermen

Illustrated, 12mo, Cloth, net $1.00.

NORMAN DUNCAN

The author of Dr. Luke has yet to put his facile pen to better purpose than in this photographic portraiture of Dr. Grenfell and his deep sea fisherfolk. As The New York Sun says, "this Oxford man is master seaman, missionary, promoter of industry, magistrate, physician, and helpful friend of every fisherman on the Labrador coast," and this sketch is convincing evidence of the eminently practical value of Dr. Grenfell's "mission."

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY have added to their Library of Popular Fiction Arthur W. Marchmont's stirring detective story, "Miser Hoadley's Secret."

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will issue at once Professor George F. Atkinson's "College Text-Book of Botany." This is the fourth book by this well-known Cornell professor which the Messrs. Holt have undertaken. He is probably best known to the general public by his work on "Mushrooms."

THE CENTURY COMPANY have just ready "The Fugitive Blacksmith," by Charles D. Stewart, an unusual and very jolly kind of a tale, in which the incidents are based largely upon the experiences of the author; also, "The Smoke Eaters," by Harvey J. O'Higgins, an epic of the New York Fire Department, an exciting book, and one full of humor.

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co. will publish at once a work by Alvan Francis Sanborn, entitled "Paris and the Social Revolution." The book is the result of the author's observations during a number of years of the French revolutionary element as he found it in all classes of Parisian society, from the anarchist laborer to the leading writers and artists of France. The illustrations have been made by Vaughan Trowbridge, an American, long resident in Paris.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just brought out a novel entitled "The Slanderers," by Warwick Deeping, author of "Uther and Igraine," a love story in which the English country in its most poetic aspects is depicted. They will publish on the 16th inst. a collection of stories by Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, entitled "The Bell in the Fog," which represent the author's mature work; an anonymous novel, entitled "John Van Buren, Politician," an intimate picture of New York machine politics; also a book for boys by James Barnes, entitled "The Blockaders."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly A. H. Savage Landor's new book, "Tibet and Nepal," which deals entirely with a second journey taken by the author in these regions, on which a previous journey had already made him the chief authority. His narrative is enlivened by descriptions of the magnificent scenery of the Himalayas and his life and adventures among their glaciers and snow-passes. All the illustrations are by Mr. Landor, most of the fifty in color representing natives at their daily occupations and amusements. They will publish, the last week in the month, Mrs. Ely's new volume, "Another Hardy Garden Book," which tells about the raising of vegetables and the cultivation of fruits for the home garden.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. publish to-day, the 11th inst., the first part of "The Dog Book," by James Watson, a dog breeder in this country and England for thirty-five years, which is timely in view of the opening of the Dog Show at Madison Square Garden on the same date. The work will be complete in ten parts, each adequately illustrated. It is the aim of the publishers to provide a popular history of the dog with practical information as to care and management of house, kennel and exhibition dogs. There will be descriptions of all the different breeds. They will publish on the 15th inst. Percival Landon's book, "The Opening of Tibet." The publishers, impressed with the statement so frequently made by librarians and others that the prices of net books are often too high, have decided to bring the book out at nearly one-third the price charged for the book in England.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

 The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

"In the following chapters, my object has been to tell the story of the life and times of Constantine the Great. Whether he deserves the epithet my readers will judge for themselves, certainly his place in the select list of the immortals is not among the highest. But whether he himself was 'great' or not, under his auspices one of the most momentous changes in the history of the world was accomplished and it is the first conversion of a Roman Emperor to Christianity, with all that such conversion entailed, which makes his period so important and so well worth studying."—Author's Preface.

Ford, Worthington Chauncey, comp. Papers of James Monroe listed in chronological order from the original manuscripts in the Library of Congress; comp. under the direction of Worthington Chauncey Ford. Wash., D. C., Government Print. Office, 1904. 4-114 p. Q. cl., 35 c.

Under an executive order, issued by the President March 9, 1903, the papers of James Monroe were transferred from the Department of State to the Library of Congress. These papers had been purchased by an act of Congress, approved March 3, 1849. In 1833 the Department of State issued a calendar of them, the arrangement of which was alphabetical, the letters of Monroe being calendared separately from those of his correspondents. This alphabetical arrangement is convenient for determining the letters written by any one man; for historical purposes chronological arrangement is better, hence, this list is prepared to be used in conjunction with the calendar of the Department of State.

The first volume in the new series of French classics for English readers is devoted to Rabelais' "Gargantua and Pantagruel." Great skill and discrimination have been shown in the handling of this famous extravaganza, which is presented in the picturesque 17th century translation of Urquhart and Motteaux. The editions have aimed to preserve intact the romance, with its wit, human interest, and historical satire and to omit only the long, dry, ethical and philosophical dissertations, which interfere with the appreciation of the story. There is a brief bibliography and an interesting introduction sketching Rabelais' life and giving an estimate of his work.

Strang, Herbert. Kobo: a story of the Russo-Japanese war; il. by W: Rainey. N. Y., Putnam, 1905. 8+370 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

Kobo is a brave Japanese spy, whose adventures carry him through the many hard-fought fights on sea and land of the Russo-Japanese war. Bob Fawcett, a young Englishman sent to Japan on a mission connected with the Japanese navy, makes the acquaintance of Kobo, knowing nothing of his position and visits him at his home in Tokio and again comes in contact with him in the campaign. Most interesting details are given of the war and its many conflicts, especially of the Battle of the Yalu. Also describes general life in Japan.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS has published a reprint of Justin Winsor's catalogue of the Kohl collection of Maps relating to America, (now in the Library of Congress,) originally published as Bibliographical Contribution No. 19 of the Library of Harvard University. Philip Lee Phillips, chief of the Division of Maps and Charts in the Library of Congress, has increased the usefulness of Winsor's compilation as a catalogue by adding an author list of the maps and a dictionary index of all subjects and authors mentioned. (189 p. 8°, cl.)

THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY, Minneapolis, announces a new monthly magazine, to be entitled The Cumulative Book Review Digest, which will be devoted to the securing of an up-to-date evaluation of current literature. Selections will be made from reviews in the leading English periodicals so as to reflect as accurately as possible what the leading writers have to say about books published in the United States. The general character of the review, whether favorable or unfavorable, and to what degree will be indicated by a system of plus or minus signs. Reference will be made to the full review, and the number of works will be given. The magazine price will be $5 a year.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 11, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

POST-HOLIDAY BOOKSELLING.

WITH the holiday season behind him the bookseller, after taking account of his stock, may well look ahead and prepare himself for some months of industrious canvassing, because between now and the early fall, unfortunately, customers will not crowd his store without special inducement or assiduous coaxing.

As a preparatory step there should be a thorough house cleaning with a view to rid the stock of shop worn and untidy "remainders," as well as to attract possible bargain hunters. Many of these goods may be sold without positive loss, others may and should be disposed of at any price, even as waste if they should fail to find a sale at "special" prices. Indeed, the actual loss might be made up later by investing the money realized from such bargain sales at a good profit. Besides, special sales attract many shoppers, and the alert and energetic bookseller should be able to make the most of such opportunities by bringing to the attention especially of transient callers his other lines sold by him at a profit. The narrow-minded dealer, of course, will hoard such stock and carry it on his inventory very likely at full prices.

In its stationery and other lines the bookstore at this time of the year has a larger field. Aside from the possibilities of cultivating the demand for requisites at dinners, card parties and other social occasions, the Valentine season now imminent, and the coming Easter season should give the enterprising bookseller opportunities for profitable business. Later on the vacation and outing season will afford the bookseller still larger opportunities for supplying his customers with books, stationery and the impedimenta with which the tourist usually stocks his trunks and satchels before starting on his trips.

Of course, it will mean many anxious hours overtime for the bookseller in which to devise ways and means through which to create this business, and to suggest things which his customers probably want, but which they either do not know the bookseller can furnish or have overlooked in making their purchases when at his store. Eternal vigilance may mean large business and profits.

WITH an "embarrassment of riches" before one in the way of good books to take choice from, it is easily possible to accidentally overlook even some of the best. This is prefatory to an explanation and apology we have to make for the omission of several leading books in our summary of "the books of 1904" in our number of January 28. In our enumeration of the works of reference of the past year, we unwittingly neglected mention of Miss Edith Granger's "Index to Poetry and Recitation," published by A. C. McClurg & Co., a work showing scholarship and great industry in getting at the exhaustive material and also a most skilful scheme of editing by which the vast material is kept within practical limits and made available for instant reference. Randall Parrish's two novels, "My Lady of the North" and "When Wilderness is King," should have found a place among the "best sellers," as they were in constant demand through the year. Also to be included among the inexcusable omissions is Rolfe's "Life of Shakespeare," endorsed by the critics as one of the best biographies published of the great poet and dramatist.

ENGLISH VIEWS ON THE AMERICAN COPYRIGHT LAW.

W. MORRIS COLLES contributes the following communication on American copyright reform to the London Academy of January 14:

Douglas Sladen has initiated a timely discussion upon the reform of American copyright in the columns of The Standard. The support he has received from such well-known people as Lord Avebury, Hall Caine, Sir A. Conan Doyle, Miss Beatrice Harraden, Rider Haggard, F. Anstey Guthrie, Andrew Lang, John Murray, Sir Lewis Morris, Rowland Prothero and many others is enough to prove the lively interest which the question excites in its present somewhat peculiar phase. It may be frankly stated that there is nothing very alarming about the projected amendment of the American law, giving, as it will, if and when it becomes law, writers in a foreign tongue a year's grace in which to have their works translated into English and to protect their copyright. The truth is that the American Copyright Act—which, with all its imperfections, has conferred very solid benefits upon a large number of British authors—has remained a dead letter so far as foreign writers are concerned. The obligation to print and publish simultaneously with the country of origin has proved prohibitive in an immense number of cases, while in others it has only been discharged at the cost of enormous delay and practical inconvenience. The suggested amendment, which came over in draft form in January, 1904, will be nothing but a tardy act of justice if, which seems unfortunately to be extremely doubtful, it becomes law. The Platt bill of 1902, upon which it is founded, was shelved.

As regards English writers it seems wise to consider, before we advocate retaliation, whether the half loaf they now possess is not better than no bread at all. It is now perfectly possible to obtain a good American copyright, provided the work in question is simultaneously published with the English edition from type set within the United States. Now, simultaneity is not an American invention. It is a cardinal principle of English law that prior publication outside of the countries within the Berne Convention is fatal to the acquisition of a sound English copyright. If, therefore, we wish to attack the principle of simultaneity, we must first amend our own law and give to America the same close time we demand for ourselves. It would enormously strengthen our case if we came with open hands and said: "We will give you a month, or six months, or twelve months, if you will reciprocate this civility." This would be far better than to attempt to bring about a change by "calling names."

The manufacturing clause is, no doubt, annoying, but it arises out of tariff policy, and not merely from the "cussedness" of the Typographical Union. During a visit to the United States, when I saw several of the many earnest and high-minded American copyright reformers, who set an example we should do well to emulate, nothing impressed me so much as the utter hopelessness of attacking a principle which would raise far wider issues than are apparent on the surface. I do not believe that any American authors or publishers would object to the immediate repeal of the clause, but I am confident that no movement for its rescission is likely to receive much support either in the House of Representatives or the Senate. The Dayton bill of 1901, which rescinded it, met with a short shrift. Considered as a part of the domestic law of the United States, is it prima facie an act of iniquity to grant American copyright only upon condition of paying a printer's bill by way of entrance fee? And can we fairly call a people who impose the condition "thieves?" There is, however, a hardship which presses severely upon the large class of writers to whom American copyright is prohibitive. An import duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem is charged on all English-printed books. Douglas Sladen has made a legitimate point in advocating retaliatory duties, and this impost might be usefully borne in mind if and when the question of a duty on foreign manufactured goods comes within the range of practical politics. If it be impracticable to establish an English manufacturing clause it would be a perfectly fair rejoinder to the American tariff to impose analogous duties. This would to some extent, moreover, obviate the danger of the manufacture of works of international importance passing into American hands, while it would further lead to the much more general importation of "plates" instead of "sheets," and so throw a considerable amount of machining into the English market, to the advantage of English printers, paper makers and even bookbinders. The Presidential proclamation, under which our admission to the benefits of American copyright rests, is based upon the principle of reciprocity. It may be questioned whether a reactionary policy is likely to command wide support outside of the literary profession. Whether the competition of books inter se is so real a grievance as to be demonstrably tangible is an open question. But the spirit with which Parliament has always regarded literary property is wholly antagonistic to any protection of the profession at the expense of the public. Agitation is much more likely to be productive of definite result if we begin at home and press the reform of domestic copyright upon Parliament so that we may have something more satisfactory to offer "strangers within our gates." It will be time enough then to talk of revising our international bargains.

EDWARD MARSTON in commenting in the London Publishers' Circular on the fifty replies received by the Standard, sums up as follows:

"The writers above quoted who have replied to the Standard's invitation may be taken as fairly representative of the whole body of authors and others interested in literature in this country. It will be seen that there is perfect unanimity among them as to the wrong and injustice of the Act of March 1891; but they are far from unanimous as to the steps to be taken to set themselves right. Roughly, it may be said of these fifty writers that eighteen are in favor of Retaliation; eight are against it; two are for imposing an equal duty on the importation of American books; seventeen are for one year's grace; five are neutral as to methods of proceeding. Some of the above who are in favor of Retaliation are against the one year's grace, and many advocating the latter object to the former.

"Many of these authors seem hardly to realize the difficulties there are in the way of carrying out their various schemes. I will endeavor to point out what I think are some of them. There was a time, not so very long ago, when certain superfine philosophers even in this country held that copyright anywhere was naught—an evanescent thing—and that a man's thoughts when uttered by him were free as air and the common property of mankind. Doubtless this view of the value of literary property was seized upon and elaborated by the Americans, and unquestionably it added weight to the side of the printers when they carried the last copyright amendment; hence it was that copyright was so begrudgingly, so limpingly bestowed as to be of no value at all except to a select few.

"That law has now been in operation about fourteen years. It is just possible that, on the whole, the number of English books set up and printed by American printers was somewhat less than when they roamed indiscriminately over the whole field of English literature. On the other hand, if by the abolition of this type-setting clause copyrights were thrown open to all, it would undoubtedly still be found convenient to very many authors to have their type set there, whilst others would send out stereotype plates, and the working, paper and binding would be supplied by Americans, and assuredly the total of business arising would be largely increased for the American manufacturer.

"Some English authors seem to think that if the detested clause were removed they could go into America with perfect ease and claim their copyright at any time! They forget that they must still pass through certain formalities of entry at Washington, and that copyright must be at least simultaneous in both countries, &c., just as is necessary in all other countries.

"RETALIATION, what does it mean?

"It means a retrograde movement on the part of the British nation which, if successful, would be a mere triumph of revenge, and would be more injurious to ourselves than to our opponents; whilst in all probability it would lead to the abrogation of that small act of mercy contained in section 13 of the Act of March 3, 1891.

"A YEAR'S GRACE.—What does this mean?

I presume it means that every English author who aspires to have his work copyrighted in America must first enter the title at Washington, according to Act of Congress, and make the usual deposit of two copies before publication which may be deferred for a year, said two copies being type-set in America. Meanwhile, the book will have been published in England, will have free circulation in America, and, if successful there, an American publisher may be found to set the type and so make the copyright perfect. If not, the author would have to take the risk himself. In short, a year's grace may possibly be the means of adding just few new members to the elect, but all the others would still remain out in the cold! In truth, the scheme bristles with difficulties, and at best promises such small results that I fear it would not be workable. It could only be regarded as a small step in the right direction.

"What, then, is the true remedy for this crying evil? It is quite clear that no possible good can be done by retaliation and mighty little by getting a year's grace. The great point is that English authors should bring all their forces to bear on the abolition of this type-setting clause, which would clear the ground in every direction—not by threats of retaliation, not by passing a special Act of Parliament (to bear on the American people only) to compel type-setting in England of works by American authors, and by introducing a Customs Import Duty to apply to Americans only—but by appealing to the good feeling, the right judgment, the sense of justice, one might almost say the common-sense of the American people. It will surely be quite time enough to think of any retaliatory measures when such an appeal fails.

"If the Congress agrees to the appointment of a Commission to sit on this copyright question, as is now proposed by the Register of Copyrights at Washington, surely it will afford an excellent opportunity for the Society of Authors to put themselves in communication with that Commission."

THE AFFAIRS OF MERRILL & BAKER.

MERRILL & BAKER, who were petitioned into bankruptcy on December 28, have not yet filed their schedules, but a list of creditors has been prepared by George W. H. Ritchie, a creditor, and approved by L. K. Merrill, treasurer of the corporation, which includes the names of 235 creditors whose claims aggregate $487,000. Among these the Grolier Society figures as a creditor for $9351.

Owing to differences among the creditors the referee in bankruptcy, William H. Wills, decided on the 8th inst. to postpone the election of a trustee until after the officers of the corporation had been examined. The following were nominated: W. Benton Crisp, lawyer, of No. 40 Wall Street; D. Cady Herrick, R. R. Appleton, president of the Fourteenth Street Bank, and Oscar W. Brady, of McClure, Phillips & Co., publishers. Opposition developed to Mr. Crisp, who it was stated had a majority in number and amount of claims filed, on the ground that he was a director of the bankrupt corporation and its attorney.

L. K. Merrill, the treasurer, was examined on the 8th inst by Arthur S. Luria, representing some of the creditors. It was shown that from a New Jersey corporation, organized in August, 1893, with a capital stock of $15,000, the business developed into a New York corporation with a capital stock of $1,250,000. Of the preferred stock $100,000 was sold for cash, some common stock being thrown in as a bonus, $1500 was used to pay borrowed money, and $43,000 was issued to the Hudson Publishing Company to repay a loan.

Merrill & Baker are said to own the capital stock of seven sub-companies, which were organized to operate branches of its business. They are the Hudson Publishing Company, capital stock $100,000; International Library Company, capital stock $100,000; and Buckner Book Concern, capital stock $5000. All these are New York City concerns. Then there are the H. Clay Russell Company, of Pittsburgh, capital stock, $5000; T. J. Caie Company, of Chicago, capital stock issued, $17,000, of which Merrill & Baker own one-half, and Merrill & Baker, a Maine corporation, capital stock $400,000, to which the New York corporation transferred certain assets to avoid taxation, and to which the

New York corporation sold a list of names for $180,000, which the Maine corporation promised to pay.

The stocks of all these subcompanies were carried as an asset on the books of Merrill & Baker, the New York corporation. The question was raised that Merrill & Baker had capitalized the right to sell their own books.

Judge Holt, of the United States District Court, has granted a motion staying a suit brought in the Supreme Court in April last, which is about ready for trial, by William T. Blodgett, as executor of his mother, Mrs. Abby B. Blodgett, to set aside a contract made by her with Merrill & Baker and to set aside notes for $78,000 given under the contract, on the ground that the contract was made at a time when she was of unsound mind. The contract was for an illuminated set of Shakespeare of thirty-nine volumes at $2000 a volume, the edition being limited to seven copies. She gave notes for $78,000 in payment, payable $6000 semi-annually from September 1, 1904, to September 1, 1910. She was adjudged incompetent on April 21, 1904, in proceedings in the Supreme Court.

FENNO OFFERS TO TAKE OVER THE BUSINESS.

At a meeting of the creditors of R. F. Fenno & Company, held January 19, there were present representatives of the following firms: Frederick A. Stokes Company, D. S. Brassil, Ben Franklin Press, Percy Jackson, Powers & Stein, John Dickenson & Co., F. A. Flinn, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., North River Bindery, and Publishers' Printing Co.

The committee of creditors reported to the meeting that while their management of the business during the past twenty months has resulted in profits amounting to about $5000, these profits were not in the form of cash, but were invested in new plant, and the company would be unable to meet the notes maturing February 18. The committee further reported that, in their opinion, it would be unwise to attempt to continue the management of the business as has been done for the past twenty months; that it was doubtful whether this would result in the eventual payment of all the notes, and that it would certainly take two or three years to pay off the notes, even assuming that the business would be successful. The committee, therefore, was unwilling to give further time to the business, gratuitously, as they had done in the past.

The committee also stated it to be their opinion that the affairs of the company should be wound up under the power conferred on them by the composition agreement, and that they had received an offer from Mr. R. F. Fenno to pay 33 per cent. in cash upon all claims in consideration of the transfer of the assets of the company to him. The committee further stated that, in their opinion, it was doubtful whether by winding up the business and a forced sale of its assets, they could realize enough to pay as much as was offered by Mr. Fenno.

The committee recommends the accepting of this offer by all of the creditors.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS. ANNUAL DINNER OF THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

ABOUT 140 booksellers and their guests were present at the tenth annual dinner of the Booksellers' League, held at the rooms of the Aldine Association on the evening of February 8. After the dinner, President Schulte spoke of the growth of the organization in its ten years of existence to an active membership of nearly 200, and expressed the hope that the League might at no distant date occupy club rooms of its own. A gold button was awarded to J. B. Pratt for having brought five new members into the League. Letters were read from Mark Twain, Thomas Dixon, Jr., Wm. E. Long and Mayor McClellan, who were unable to be present.

The first speaker of the evening was Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Evening Journal, who spoke in part as follows: "The age we live in is an age of distribution. In the past men have been active in producing, but the important thing now is distribution, and the agents of distribution are the labor unions. In meeting you I meet the men engaged in the distribution of food to the human mind. The world has got to a point where a man who has risen at all above the lowest level desires to do some good to others. Now, if every man here would make up his mind to pick out some solid book—I don't mean a heavy book, but a book that will make people more sensible or happier—and try to sell it, you could do a great deal of good. For if you put a book before people in the right way they will buy it." Here Mr. Brisbane told how his own editorial commendation of certain serious books, including Spencer's "Facts and Comments," had increased their sale even beyond the publisher's expectations. "If all booksellers would do their best to prove such books salable," said he, "they would have an enormous influence on publishers and the kind of books produced."

Cass Richardson was next called upon, and gave a witty account of his trip to the meeting of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Association of Pittsburgh.

Dillon Wallace, author of "The Lure of the Labrador Wild," then narrated the story of his thrilling adventures of exploration in the interior of Labrador in company with Leonidas Hubbard, who was sent out by Outing in 1902 and died on the return trip from exhaustion. The story was illustrated with stereopticon views taken on the trip.

J. R. Buchanan, author of "The Story of a Labor Agitator," made a stirring appeal to the members of the trade to "sell and spread books which give the labor question a show." "It is but a short time," said he, "since the labor question began to find expression in books; but we are now on the threshold of an era which will give the world many instructive books on the question of labor. If you want to serve humanity, first acquaint yourself with what the American labor movement means, first unlearn a great many errors that have undoubtedly taken root in your minds, and then, as you take opportunity to distribute the books on the labor question you will find you have a call to do good to every household in the land. There is no reason why the wage-workers in the book trade should not co-operate with the wage-workers in other trades."

The Rev. Thomas B. Gregory, the last speaker, urged booksellers to do all they could to promote the distribution of such literature as will make men and women realize their greatness.

A vote of thanks was accorded to the speakers of the evening and the meeting was then adjourned.

BOSTON STATIONERS' DINNER.

THE BOSTON STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION held its seventeenth annual meeting and dinner, at Young's Hotel, Boston, on the evening of January 25. Owing to the severe storm but sixty-eight members and their guests were able to be present. President A. K. Pratt presided and Arthur P. Jackson, R. Ward Carroll, W. R. Mitchell, the Rev. Marcus H. Carroll, Samuel Ward, A. Thomas, and J. R. Carter with speeches and song helped to make the evening an enjoyable one for all present.

The report of the treasurer showed a balance on hand of $110.82.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, A. K. Pratt, of J. L. Fairbanks & Co.

First Vice-President, S. Henry Hooper, of Hooper, Lewis & Co.

Second Vice-President, E. A. Hammond, the Federal Street stationer.

Secretary, George E. Damon, of Thorp & Martin Co.

Treasurer, H. S. Foster, of the John A. Lowell & Co.

Executive Committee, W. M. McAdams, Charles E. Cherrington, Francis Doane, Herbert F. White, W. B. Clarke.

Arbitration Committee, Samuel Ward, W. F. Cushing, W. B. Clarke.

Membership Committee, A. L. Delesdernier, Charles E. Cherrington, W. F. Gaylord.

Transportation Committee, Charles E. Adams, W. B. Clarke, F. W. Bailey.

NEW YORK BOOKBINDERS DINE.

THE Employing Bookbinders' Association of New York City gave its Eighth annual dinner on the evening of February 4, at the Hotel Savoy. About 150 members and their guests were seated in the ornate dining room of the hotel at about eight o'clock, to discuss the excellent dinner of ten courses. The literary feast was opened by Raymond E. Baylis, the president, who in a felicitous speech of welcome introduced J. Stearns Cushing of the Norwood Press. Mr. Cushing spoke of "bookbuilding," and gave some plain talk on the ideal as opposed to the bizarre and faddish in bookmaking. Don C. Seitz of the New York World told some amusing experiences in having pamphlets bound; the Rev. W. Warren Giles of Summit, N. J., struggled with the subject of Edition de luxe; George J. Bryan, of the University Society, spoke of "Subscription book"-selling; and J. Clyde Oswald spoke entertainingly on the progress of printing. Other speakers were Cyrus Townsend Brady, Louis Wiley of the New York Times, and Charles M. Smith, the secretary of the Association, who though they were down on the program to speak on "Edition binding," "half-calf" and "skivers," respectively, wandered cheerfully away from their texts to the amusement and edification of their hearers. W. B. Conkey, of Hammond, Ind., was present and when called upon to address the gathering spoke enthusiastically of the work of the bookbinder and his importance in preserving to future ages the printed work of to-day. Robert Rutter, the father of the organization, who entered his 78th year on the 6th inst., and has been actively engaged in the bookbinding business since 1842, made a brief speech congratulating the officers on their very efficient work in keeping the association up to the high-water mark of usefulness.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE DINNER.

THE annual dinner of the Stationers' Board of Trade, given at the Waldorf-Astoria on the evening of the 7th inst., was attended by about 150 members and their guests, Henry C. Bainbridge presiding. The speakers of the evening were the Rev. Roelif H. Brooks, of Brooklyn; John B. Fay, of A. C. McClurg & Co., the president of the Chicago Stationers' Association; O. F. Nichols, chief engineer of the Department of Bridges of New York City; the Hon. John S. Wise, Abner K. Pratt, president of the Boston Stationers' Association, and W. N. Caldwell, president of the American Writing Paper Company. John C. Dempsey entertained the company with song and stories and George J. Patterson gave a number of banjo solos.

Mr. Bainbridge in his introductory remarks informed the company that about fifty retail stationers of New York City would have a meeting at the St. Denis Hotel on March 1, to discuss the organization of a society similar to those in other cities to co-operate with the National Association of Stationers. A dinner will be served at $2 the plate, and all interested are cordially invited to be present. The meeting will be strictly informal as to dress—swallow tails or claw-hammers being barred.

COMMUNICATIONS.

CRITICISM OF MARK TWAIN'S VIEW OF THE COPYRIGHT LAW.

JANUARY 31, 1905.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your leading article in issue of January 21, quoting from Mark Twain's remarks on the forty-two-year limit of copyright he says the forty-two-year limit accomplishes nothing useful whatever, but instead "takes the bread out of the mouths of ten authors per year—usually the ten poorest and most distinguished literary servants of the nation." "It does seem a small business for a big nation," Mr. Clemens argues. "It is the assassination of the fittest. When a soldier retires from the wars," he continues, "the government spends $150,000.000 [sic] a year upon him and his, and the pension is continued to his widow and orphans. But when it retires a distinguished author's book at the end of forty-two years it takes the book's subsequent profits away from the widow and orphans and gives them—to whom? Not to the public, but to the publishers. The publisher goes on publishing, and he takes all the profit, both the author's and his own. It is a crime—a crime perpetrated by a great country upon ten poor devils a year."

It is a matter of surprise that a man who has been both author and publisher should make a statement that a publisher profits by the sale of non-copyright books to the exclusion of the public. As a publisher it would be interesting to have Mr. Clemens give a list of such books as have not been reduced in price at once when a copyright has expired, if not by the former publisher, by one who reprints the book. I cannot recall such an instance—not one. Perhaps he can and I would be pleased to have its title, as would many others.

Volubility is not necessarily a sure sign of accuracy. G. W. OGILVIE.

DEFINITION OF "NET" BOOKS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In Section I of the agreement of the American Publishers' Association regarding net prices is the following statement: Provided, "That the Members of the American Publishers' Association agree that all copyrighted books first issued by them after May 1, 1901, shall be published at net prices which it is recommended shall be reduced from the prices at which similar books have been issued heretofore: Provided however that there shall be exempt from this agreement all school books, books published by subscription and not through the trade, such other books as are not sold through the trade; also at the desire of the publisher, any new editions, any work of fiction or any juvenile."

I shall feel it a favor if you can take the time to define some of the terms of this statement.

What are meant by school books? Does this include only the material published by Ginn, the American Book Co., Hinds, etc., as regular school text-books? Or are advanced technical works included, such as the engineering and scientific publications of Spon and Van Nostrand?

In THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY it is stated that books starred once are not subject to American Publishers' Association rules. There is a bewildering variety of these. Can they all be referred to some one of the classes excepted in the above statement? Or are some of them so marked because their publishers are not members of the Association?

Here are some examples, taken from THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY cumulation of Oct. 8, 1904:

Schaeffer, Atlas of operative gynecology. Is this considered a text book, or was it published outside of the American Publishers' Association rules merely because its publisher so chose?

Hanbury, Sport in the northland of Canada. Are importations not covered by the rules?

Doubtless no one outside of the trade can expect to understand all the distinctions involved, and I have no desire to involve you in a course of lectures on the subject. My chief desire is to have sufficient information to check our agent in his discounts. He shows among other things a strong inclination to call every possible work a text-book and give it accordingly a less discount.

H. L. GOODRICH,

Head of Accession Dept.

STATE LIBRARY, N. Y., Jan. 26, 1905.

[School-books, pure and simple, are not subject to protection under the rules of the American Publishers' Association, and school-book publishers, such as the American Book Company, Ginn & Co., Hinds & Noble, and others, are therefore not included in its membership. Copyrighted advanced text-books, if used in colleges, universities, or technical schools, such as engineering or scientific, when published by a member of the American Publishers' Association are listed as protected net books, and are marked with two stars (). If brought out by a publisher not a member of the American Publishers' Association, at a net price, such net price is marked with one star (*) only.]

Non-copyright books or books imported in small editions, even when brought out with the imprint of a member of the American Publishers' Association at a net price, are usually listed with one star (*), indicating that they are not brought out as protected books under the rules of the Association.

As stated in the heading of our Weekly Record, books with one star (*) are net, but not published under the rules of the A. P. A., whether the publisher is a member of the Association or not. Books with two stars () are books published under the rules of the A. P. A., and are protected for one year.

The titles referred to, Schaeffer's "Atlas of Operative Gynecology," is published net by W. B. Saunders & Co., who are not members of the A. P. A.; Hanbury's "Sport in Northland," is an imported book, published by the Macmillan Company as agent in this country, and is marked with one star (*) because not published under the rules of the A. P. A.

In short, our lists in all cases indicate whether a book is protected for one year, under the rules of the A. P. A., when two stars () are prefixed to price, and the ordinary net books when one star () is prefixed to price. Books indicated with one star () are net with from 5 to 20 per cent. discount or more.—ED. P. W.]

JAMES POTT.

JAMES POTT, the senior member of the publishing firm of James Pott & Co., died suddenly on February 8 at the residence of his sister, at 62 West Forty-eighth Street, New York.

Mr. Pott was born in New York City on May 15, 1829, of an old New York family. His father was Gideon Pott, a well-known merchant in his day. At the age of fourteen Mr. Pott became an employee in the commission house of Stone, Swan & Co., afterward Mitchell & Pott, which firm went out of business just before the war between the States broke out.

In 1860 Mr. Pott was made agent of the New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society, and with Mr. Amery formed the bookselling firm of Pott & Amery, opening up a store on Fourth Avenue in the then newly-built Cooper Institute. Pott & Amery were at various times the agents for Macmillan & Co., the Cambridge University Press and other English publishers, but the most important addition to the firm's business was the agency of the London Bible Warehouse, established in 1848 in New York, on Platt Street, by Eyre & Spottiswoode. In 1864 Pott & Amery assumed the agency of the London Bible Warehouse which, since it was established on Platt Street, had followed the uptown movement, settling first on Nassau Street, then at 626 Broadway, and, finally, at Cooper Institute. In 1871 the firm of Pott & Amery was dissolved and Edwin and James B. Young, former grocers and distillers, joined Mr. Pott, and formed the firm of Pott, Young & Co. The firm, in addition to running a well-equipped and ably-directed retail bookstore, making a specialty of church books, also began the publishing of religious and miscellaneous books of a high grade.

In December, 1880, Mr. Pott retired from the firm of Pott, Young & Co., and early in 1881 began a publishing and bookselling business under his own name at 12 Astor Place. The old business was continued at the old store in Cooper Institute by Edwin and James Young and Edward R. Young, a son of Edwin Young, under the firm name of E. & J. B. Young & Co. In 1884 Mr. Pott's Son, James Pott, Jr., was admitted to partnership, and the firm name then became James Pott & Co. In the early part of 1893 the firm removed to 114 Fifth Avenue, and in March, 1896, to their present location in the Jefferson Building at 119 and 121 West Twenty-third Street. When they removed to Twenty-third Street the firm gave up their retail department, which was then taken over by Edwin Gorham, who had been on Mr. Pott's staff since 1868, and who for many years was practically in full charge of the retail department.

Mr. Pott was extremely reserved and reticent. He was intensely interested in philanthropic work, and ever active in forwarding the work of a number of institutions devoted to ameliorating the condition of the needy and spreading the work of the church. He was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church and for forty years the treasurer of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, treasurer of the New York Archdeaconry, and also treasurer of the New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society. He retained an active interest in all his affiliations until declining health obliged him to restrict some of his work.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CAROLINE FRANCES ORNE, the New England poet, died at Cambridge, Mass., February 8. Miss Orne was borne in Cambridge September 5, 1818. She was the first librarian of the Cambridge Public Library, a position she held for seventeen years. She was the author of "Letters of Marque," "Lucy's Party and Other Tales," "Sweet Auburn and Mount Auburn," "Morning Song of American Freedom," also of several small books for children.

WILLIAM FRASER RAE, an English writer of wide culture, died in Bath, January 22. Mr. Rae was born in 1835, and was educated at Heidelberg. He wrote much on Canada and the United States, having travelled a good deal on the American Continent. On this subject, his "Columbia and Canada," "Notes on the Great Republic and the New Dominion," "Newfoundland to Manitoba," and "Facts About Manitoba," are well known. Among his novels, his "Miss Bayle's Romance," published in 1887, may still be remembered. He also was deeply interested in the identification of "Junius," a subject on which he wrote much. He was active in copyright matters and was chairman of the Library Committee of the London Reform Club.

THE REV. WILLIAM ROUNSEVILLE ALGER, a widely known writer and retired clergyman, died in Boston, on February 7, at the age of eighty-two years. He was born in Freetown, Mass., December 28, 1822, and was graduated from the Harvard Divinity School. He was pastor of the Roxbury Unitarian Church from 1847 to 1855, later preached in Boston, and then for four years was pastor of the Church of the Messiah, in New York City. He was well known as an anti-slavery speaker prior to the Civil War. Among his better-known printed works are "Symbolic History of the Cross," "The School of Life," "History of the Doctrine of a Future Life," "The Genius of Solitude," "The Friendships of Women," "Poetry of the Orient," "Life of Edwin Forrest," and "Sources of Consolation in Human Life."

VINTON, IOWA.—Alva Morrison has succeeded to the book and stationery business of C. H. Plattenburg.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE London Literary World, which has been in existence for thirty-five years, and hitherto published weekly, with its issue for February 15 will become a monthly illustrated review of general literature.

THE London Academy has been purchased by Sir George Newnes, publisher of The Strand Magazine, Tidbits, etc. Established in 1869, The Academy was purchased in 1896 by John Morgan Richards, an American drug merchant resident in England. Mr. Richards is the father of Mrs. Craigie, the novelist, who has written much for The Academy. The editor of The Academy lately has been W. Teignmouth Shore, who succeeded C. Lewis Hind in 1903. Literature, formerly published by the London Times, was incorporated with The Academy in 1901.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GORKY, it appears, was not released, and he with seven other authors and publicists are to be tried on political charges. The Minister of Justice is in receipt of letters daily from abroad imploring him to spare Gorky's life.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

J. G. GESSNER, who has been for more than twelve years connected with the sales department of The Macmillan Company, will in the future represent Fox, Duffield & Company.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have in press a book on temperance, by Bishop Henry C. Potter, which, we learn, sets forth views which he has held and expressed for several years past, and gives forcible reasons for his present attitude on the saloon question.

GINN & Co. have just brought out in their Wood Folks Series, a new book by William J. Long, entitled "A Little Brother to the Bear," which has the strong personal quality that is distinctive of Dr. Long's writings, and is filled with the atmosphere of the big woods.

SUBSCRIBERS to the work on "The Printed English Bible, 1525-1769," which the late Mr. Lovett had in hand, have been informed that it will not now be proceeded with. It is a matter of regret that no expert can be found to continue the work of the late secretary of the Religious Tract Society.

MR. S. PAUL of Hutchinson & Co., London, is on his way to a visit to this country. He will pass through Canada and return by way of Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston. His address until March 30 will be in care of the General Postoffice, Toronto, and after that in care of the General Postoffice at New York.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in preparation a volume entitled "The Religion of Duty," by Felix Adler, head of the Ethical Culture Society and author of "Life and Destiny." The volume is said to express in more extended form than did "Life and Destiny" the ideals and purposes of the Ethical religion as preached by Dr. Adler.

WILLIAM ABBATT of New York City announces a new, revised, and fully illustrated edition of the late Charles H. Winfield's account of the historic attack by General Wayne on the block house held by a force of Tories, near Bull's Ferry, in 1780. The volume will also contain a reprint of André's satirical poem, "The Cow-Chace," which was suggested by this incident. Among the illustrations will be portraits of Wayne, Irvine, Lord Stirling, and others, autograph letters in facsimile, and one or two documents.

MORANG & Co., Limited, of Toronto, will publish this month Volume VII. in The Makers of Canada series. It is a life of "Samuel de Champlain," by Narcisse E. Dionne. It will be followed in April by Henri Raymond Casgrain's volume on "Wolfe and Montcalm," and, at intervals of two or three months, by a volume on "Mackenzie, Selkirk, and Simpson," by George Bryce; "Count Frontenac," by W. D. Le Suer; "John Graves Simcoe," by Duncan C. Scott, and others. The series will be completed in twenty volumes.

CHARLES E. GOODSPEED, Boston, will publish shortly "The Bride," by S. R. London, 1617, an exact reprint of a hitherto unknown poem by Samuel Rowlands, a poet and pamphleteer who flourished in the first quarter of the seventeenth century. The reprint will be made from the copy, believed to be unique, now in the Harvard College Library, with an introductory note by Alfred Clayborn Potter, assistant librarian. The edition will be limited to 210 copies, of which 190 will be for sale for the benefit of the Harvard College Library.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish shortly "Pam," a new story by Bettina von Hutten, with illustrations by B. Martin Justice; "Bandalero," by Paul Gwynne, an exciting Spanish story with a satisfactory ending; "Billy Duane," a story of New York life by Frances Aymar Mathews, whose well-known "My Peggy Goes to Town" and "Pamela Congreve," have given the author an established reputation; also, "The Verdict of the Gods," by Sarath Kumar Gosh, a high-caste Indian of ancient lineage, who writes of life in India as he knows it.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in press for publication before June 1, lives of Thomas Moore, Sidney Smith, Bryant and Prescott in the English Men of Letters series; the first volume of an edition of "The Life and Writings of Benjamin Franklin," which will be noteworthy for its very large number of newly-discovered letters and documents; "Labor Problems," by Professor Thomas S. Adams and Miss Helen Sumner; "Jesus Christ and the Christian Character," by Professor Peabody of Harvard; also, Professor William P. Trent's volume on the "Southern Writers."

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have in preparation a work on Revelation, by Dr. Ford C. Ottman, entitled "The Unfolding of the Ages," which while not strictly a commentary nevertheless interprets sanely this difficult book of the Bible. They have also under way "Memoirs of a Great Detective, incidents in the life of John Wilson Murray," edited by Victor Speer. Murray, who was known as "Old-Never-Let-Go-Murray," was chief of the Ontario detective service, and one of the cleverest and best-known detectives of this continent, and perhaps of the world. During thirty years he solved hundreds of murder mysteries, forgeries, robberies, and uncovered some of the most notable counterfeiting gangs of the world, tracking criminals over two continents and fighting desperate battles when defeat meant death. These memoirs comprise a series of detective tales which are literally true and yet reveal stratagems as clever as those of Doyle and Gaboriau.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are publishing "A Guide for the Perplexed," by Moses Maimonides, the noted Jewish theologian. The translation from the Arabic has been done by M. Friedländer, Ph.D., who also furnishes an account of the life of the author. Amongst his co-religionists Maimonides noticed the antagonism between faith and philosophy. In his guide he attempts to reconcile for them faith and reason. In the original Arabic the book has been a classic for many years. The present edition is the only form in which it is now accessible in English. They are also bringing out the Miniature Reference Library, a series of popular reference books of pocket size, (2 x 2¾ inches,) intended to answer every-day questions conveniently and quickly. Now ready are "Who Wrote That?" "Dictionary of Abbreviations," and "Mottoes and Badges." Several more are announced, including "Who Said That?" "Who Did That?" "5000 Words Frequently Misspelt," and a "Dictionary Appendix."

ERASTUS DARROW of Rochester, N. Y., the oldest bookseller in Western New York, continuously in business for fifty-seven years, celebrated his eighty-second birthday on January 29, having been born in Plymouth, Litchfield County, Conn., in 1823. After attending school in Plymouth and at New Haven, he entered, in March, 1841, A. H. Maltby's College Bookstore at New Haven. In 1844 Mr. Darrow went to Rochester, N. Y., and entered the employ of Clarendon Morse. In 1846 he opened a bookstore himself in the Minerva Block, on the spot where the Merchants' Bank now stands, on Main Street East. With him were associated at different times James Henry Gregory, his brother, Wallace Darrow, and Henry Kempshall. Mr. Darrow is hale and hearty for a man of his advanced years and still looks after the interests of his business without assistance. He lives with his wife at 90 Kenilworth Terrace and has two children, a son and a daughter, also residing in Rochester. We offer him on behalf of the trade hearty congratulations.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation for the spring a new book by Andrew Carnegie, "The Life of James Watt," which it is said will contain much new information; "The Walking Delegate," a labor union novel, by Leroy Scott, who makes his leading figure a man of the Sam Parks type, but more intelligent and more subtle; "Concerning Belinda," by Eleanor Hoyt; "The Indifference of Juliet," by Grace S. Richmond; "Sons o' Men," by G. B. Lancaster; a new edition of "The Story of Ab," by Stanley Waterloo; a life of Chopin, by G. C. Ashton Johnson; "How to Keep Bees," by Anna S. Comstock; "The Mortgage on the Brain," by Vincent Harper; "Follow Through," by Frederick Upham Adams; "How to Make a Vegetable Garden," by Edith Fullerton; and "Fairy Tales Every Child Should Know," edited by Hamilton W. Mabie. They have acquired the stock and publication rights of Agnes C. Laut's novel, "Lords of the North." By many people this is considered the best work of an author who has vigorously interpreted Canadian Northwest life.

L. C. PAGE & Co. announce a new novel by Miss Alice MacGowan and Mrs. Grace MacGowan Cooke, entitled "Return," dealing with life in the frontier settlements in the Georgia Colony, the heroine of which, Diana Chatres, was the belle of the Colonial city of Charleston, S. C., in the early 17th century, and the hero a young Virginian of the historic family of Marshall; "Slaves of Success," by Elliott Flower, author of "The Spoilsman," etc., a story of state and national politics that recently appeared in condensed form in Collier's; "Silver Bells," by Colonel Andrew C. P. Haggard, the story of an educated Indian girl who "harks back" to the ways of the savage in the wilderness; "A Captain of Men," by E. Anson More, a tale of Tyre and those merchant princes whose discovery of the value of tin brought great riches into the country and afforded adventures without number to those daring seekers for the mines; "The Fair Land Tyrol," by W. D. MacCrackan, a useful book for the visitor to Switzerland and the Dolomites; also, "Stories of Little Fishes," by Lenore E. Mulets, the sixth volume in Phyllis's Field Friends Series.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish at once "The Harvest of the Sea," a tale of both sides of the Atlantic, by Wilfred T. Grenfell, M.D., who is known as the most heroic figure on the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts, up and down which he cruises in his small hospital ship, attending the fishermen of the North region. His book tells in fiction form the experiences, adventures and dangers of a North Sea fisherman, which are not often thought of as included in the price of fish. The narrative is of the nature that would appeal to boys as well as maturer minds, and has the added value of being true as it is drawn from this life. William Eleroy Curtis, the traveller and newspaper correspondent, has returned from his tour around the world, and is once more at his home in Washington. The letters that he wrote daily and which appeared in one or two leading papers East and West, he has now collected and edited for appearance in boog form. Revells report that the correspondence will make two volumes, one entitled "Egypt, Burma and British Malaysia," and the other "Modern India." The volumes are now in process of making.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready Miss Dougall's new novel, "The Summit House Mystery," which is published in England under the title of "The Earthly Purgatory." The action of the story takes place in America. They will publish this month limited editions of the complete works of Thomas Carlyle in 18 volumes, and the complete works of W. H. Prescott in 12 volumes. Both works will be bound in cloth and half leather and will be sold by subscription. They will publish in March a work entitled "Modern Masters of Pulpit Discourse," by Professor William Cleaver Wilkinson, of the University of Chicago, trenchant, yet sympathetic, appreciations and criticisms of many of the greatest preachers in America and England, with vivid descriptions of the pulpit methods and personal qualities of such men as Beecher, Liddon and Phillips Brooks; "Superstition in Medicine," by Dr. Julius L. Salinger, translated from the German by Dr. Hugo Magnus, which gives a history of the erroneous ideas and fanciful beliefs with regard to sickness and its cure, or "healing," that have prevailed in the world from the days of ancient Rome to the present time, when so many widely different theories of healing are exploited; "The Traveler's Handbook," by Miss Josephine Tozier, a practical book for travellers in the eastern hemisphere; also, a new novel by Frances Aymar Mathews, author of "When Peggy Comes to Town," etc., to be entitled "The Coming of the King," an amusing and romantic story of Americans in France.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have in active preparation for early publication the following books: "Mirabeau and the French Revolution," by Hon. Charles F. Warwick, illustrated; "Montaigne," by Professor Edward Dowden, which will form the first volume of the French Men of Letters series, edited by Alexander Jessup, Jr.; "American Thumbprints," a volume of essays by Kate Stephens; "Diplomatic Mysteries," the inside story of some of the greatest international episodes of recent years, by Vance Thompson, illustrated; a new edition of Bigelow's "Life of Franklin," containing much fresh material, in three volumes, illustrated; "Cambridge Sketches," studies of life and character by Frank P. Stearns, illustrated; "The Ravanel," a story of love and mystery of to-day, by Harris Dickson, illustrated; "The Accolade," a romance of Chaucer's time, by Edward S. Phelps; also, several additions to Lippincott's Series of Select Novels, including "Cadets of Gascony," by Burton E. Stevenson; "Magic Wheel," by John Strange Winter, and "Mistress of Brae Farm," by Rosa N. Carey. Among scientific publications they will immediately publish "The Spinning and Twisting of Long Vegetable Fibres," by Herbert R. Carter; "Calcareous Cements," by Gilbert R. Redgrave and Charles Spackman; "Electricity Control," by Leonard Andrews; and "Oil Fuel," by Sydney H. North, all of which are illustrated. They will also issue shortly the third edition of "How to Cook for the Sick," by Helena V. Sachse and the second edition of "A Hand-Book of Nursing," rewritten and enlarged, published under the direction of the Connecticut Training School for Nurses.

AUCTION SALES.

FEBRUARY 14, 3 P.M.—Americana, first editions, etc., and engraved portraits and book-plates. (353 lots.)—Anderson.

FEBRUARY 14-17, 3 P.M.—Library of the late Edgar Knickerbocker, of New York, including Americana, English and American law books, etc.; also engravings, drawings, etc. (1271 lots.)—Merwin-Clayton.

WILBERFORCE EAMES, of the Lenox Library, will sell his collection of rare books and manuscripts through the Anderson Auction Company in the spring. Mr. Eames's collection of bibliography is probably as comprehensive and valuable as any in the hands of a private collector, as is also his collection of American incunabula. His Chinese collection, works on the languages and history of Africa, India, Afghanistan and Indo-China is also full of interesting material. Among his manuscripts are a number of curious papyri, manuscripts of the Koran, the Bhagavad-Gita, palm-leaf manuscripts of the Pali text, etc.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

✒ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

✒ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Author of "The Queen's Advocate," "The Heritage of Peril," "The Price of Freedom," etc.

Issued as No. 21, THE LIBRARY OF POPULAR FICTION

12mo, Paper, - - - -

Retail, 25 Cents

This is a realistic story of mystery, hidden jewels and true love. The secret of the cryptogram, in which is described the hiding place of the jewels, is a clever arrangement of the keys of a typewriter.

The solving of the mystery, the finding of the jewels and the heroine's happy realization of her dearest hopes are described in splendid style.

The Library of Popular Fiction is the best and most attractive series of books ever offered at the price. Printed on good paper, clear type, illustrated, sewed and bound in an artistic cover, printed in colors.

THE BIG BOOK OF 1905

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

The Friend of the South

AS HE IS IN

THE CLANSMAN

By Thomas Dixon, Jr.

NASHVILLE
AMERICAN:

LOUISVILLE
COURIER-JOURNAL:

"The President is living, real and nobly dignified throughout, and his utterances are tinged with the keen humor so noticeable in all that history has related of the great and good man."

CHARLESTON (S. C.)
NEWS AND COURIER:

"Mr. Lincoln is described as the true friend of the South, and his assassination was the most fearful blow ever received by our people."

SAVANNAH (GA.)
NEWS:

"Probably no more delicate and worthy appreciation of Mr. Lincoln has ever been written. That he was a true friend of the South—of the whole people—is strikingly developed from authenticated facts."

THE WORLD'S · WORK ·

To Librarians and Others Interested in Good Books:

We have been much impressed with the statement so frequently made by librarians and others that the prices of net books are often too high.

We have decided to make the experiment of publishing the finest book of travel of the year, at as low a net price as we can, even anticipating a large sale. We refer to "The Opening of Tibet," (by Perceval Landon, the correspondent of The London Times, who accompanied the expedition to Lhasa), which has an introduction by Colonel Younghusband, the leader of the expedition, and is the authoritative book on this subject.

The work will contain all the matter included in the English Edition, which sells for two guineas. It will be a royal octavo of nearly 500 pages, with forty-eight full-page doubletone plates and a frontispiece in color. The price will be $3.80 net.

The author, in sending the proofs, marked scores of pages which he said might be omitted in the American edition to reduce its price. We are convinced that this matter could not be cut without injuring the work, so the full book has been retained and the price kept to the sum originally planned.

In this connection it is interesting to know how rapidly the book had to be made. The complete copy was given to DeVinne, who put the work in type on Saturday afternoon, February 4th. The paper was made in a single day, and the complete volume will be published February 18th.

We ask that you will examine it.

Yours truly,

BOOTH TARKINGTON'S IN THE ARENA

"The Gentleman from Indiana in Politics"

That is how you may describe this new book of Mr. Tarkington's. Its author has drawn extensively upon his experiences and observations in the legislature of his native State, with the result that he has given such a gallery of political portraits, and such an account of how things are worked in the great arena, as has never before been achieved in American literature.

"Mr. Tarkington has done for the short story what Mr. Ade has done for the stage, and 'In the Arena' should have a success similar to that of 'The County Chairman.'" N. Y. Globe.

Cloth, 12mo. Illustrations by A. I. Kellar and others. $1.50
